

Letter from Mabel Hubbard Bell to Alexander Graham Bell, 1908, with transcript

Letter from Mrs. Alexander Graham Bell to Dr. Alexander Graham Bell. 1331 Connecticut Avenue. (1908) Dear Alec:

Why won't you tell me something about yourself in your telegrams. It makes me homesick not to hear anything at all. I miss you awfully. Why can't you telegraph yourself about the dinner. They evidently want to be most complimentary to you, please meet them graciously. Nobody's lovelier than you when it comes to the point, but beforehand you are not so sweet sometimes.

I wish you could see the two little things, Mabel and Alexander, they are playing together so nicely, not together exactly, but side by side.

The Review is in its last stages. I am disappointed in the arrangement of my dept. Next time I will fix that myself, perhaps. Also I am disappointed that the facsimile of Chinese V.S. can't go in this No. I think some of the other matter might have been left out, but Mr. Booth has been so nice that I can't make a fuss. Nobody could be nicer than he has been, more helpful and more appreciative.

Lovingly, Your Mabel.
